Certificate III in Harvesting and Haulage for chainsaw operators

Workspace Training offers the Certificate III in Harvesting and Haulage (FPI30205) as a specialist program to chainsaw operators working in commercial production environments. The course is particularly suited to operators who carry out tree falling, de-limbing and cross cutting for local councils, national parks or other non-production enterprises.

The units of competency for this qualification comprise 6 core units and 7 electives from the Forest Products Industry Training Package (FPI05). Note that other units are available under the packaging rules for FPI05, but these are not offered by Workspace Training under this specialist chainsaw operator's program.

The program is designed to be run in a series of modules at the participants' workplace and out in the field. Extensive practice time will be allocated to working in the bush undertaking the full range of chainsaw activities required of a competent operator.

Please note that the nominal hours shown for each competency are an estimate only of the typical time required to complete the unit, including face-to-face training, on-the-job practice and assessment activities. The actual time taken will depend on the participant's level of experience and skill in that competency. Participants who can demonstrate existing skills to the level required will receive 'recognition of prior learning' (RPL) for those competencies.
